SANTA ROSA JUNIOR COLLEGE HISTORY

Santa Rosa Junior College is one of the nation's most prestigious community colleges. The college is dedicated to the democratic ideal of making affording higher education accessible for all. The college works to ensure a positive and inclusive experience for students, faculty and staff alike.

Founded in 1918, SRJC is the 10th oldest of California's 109 publicly funded two-year colleges. It has become one of the largest single college districts in the United States. The District encompasses more than 1,600 square miles. It operates two full service campuses in Sonoma County: a 100-plus acre campus in Santa Rosa and a 40-acre campus in Petaluma. SRJC also operates a regional Public Safety Training Center in Windsor, Shone Farm, a sustainable agriculture program near Forestville, a premier Culinary Arts Center and a cutting edge Technology Academy on the Petaluma Campus.

We look forward to building your brand while at the same time fostering our local community.

ADVERTISE ONLINE WITH THE OAK LEAF NEWS MEDIA

Digital Media Kit

Reach more than 40,000 students, alumni, staff, faculty and community members by advertising online with the Oak Leaf and let us help you bring your brand's vision to life.

The Oak Leaf is the Santa Rosa Junior College's award-winning student news media. Established in 1928, the Oak Leaf provides the most comprehensive online coverage of campus news, events, sports and entertainment to the SRJC community.

Published online daily, the Oak Leaf provides breaking news via its website and social media outlets, including Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and YouTube. The Oak Leaf Magazine will debut this fall.

Developing an advertising relationship with the Oak Leaf is the most optimal way to consistently reach the SRJC campus community. The college does not offer direct advertising on campus making the Oak Leaf a premier media platform that directly reaches the community.
